Dear Ms. Scantlebury,

I am deeply concerned about the use of our water resources in Kingman, Az., being consumed by farmers to the point that those of us who live here will at some point not have adequate water to drink & bathe etc. Some of us have already begun to conserve our water use. It was shocking when we learned several years ago that there were those coming to Kingman and buying land with the express purpose of using our water resources for their benefit. I would like to see our water resources allocated to residents first and not allowing farmers to overuse what we have to survive on.

Sincerely,
Karin Cabrera
